Director's Notes

"In every show there should be a secret metaphor that nobody knows except the authors ... In Company we were making a comparison between a contemporary marriage and the island of Manhattan... If you asked Hal Prince to state what Company is about in one sentence, and then asked George Furth, and asked me, we would probably come up with different sentences. But we all know about this underlying metaphor of Manhattan, which is the handiest locale for the inhumanity of contemporary living and the difficulties in making relationships."

- Stephen Sondheim -

It takes two.
I thought one was enough,
It's not true:
it takes two of us
You came through
When the journey was rough.
  It took you.
  It took two of us.

It takes care,
It takes patience and fear and despair
To change.
Though you swear
To change,
Who can tell if you do?
  It takes two.
