All My Heroes Are Broke

Ariel F. Henriquez

Florida International University, ahenr012@fiu.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.fiu.edu/etd

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

http://digitalcommons.fiu.edu/etd/3266

This work is brought to you for free and open access by the University Graduate School at FIU Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in FIU Electronic Theses and Dissertations by an authorized administrator of FIU Digital Commons. For more information, please contact dcc@fiu.edu.
ALL MY HEROES ARE BROKE

A thesis submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of

MASTER OF FINE ARTS

in

CREATIVE WRITING

by

Ariel Francisco Henriquez

2017
To: Dean Michael R. Heithaus
College of Arts, Sciences and Education

This thesis, written by Ariel Francisco Henriquez, and entitled All My Heroes Are Broke, having been approved in respect to style and intellectual content, is referred to you for judgment.

We have read this thesis and recommend that it be approved.

______________________________
Denise Duhamel

______________________________
Jason Pearl

______________________________
Campbell McGrath, Major Professor

Date of Defense: March 1, 2017

The thesis of Ariel Francisco Henriquez is approved.

______________________________
Dean Michael R. Heithaus
College of Arts, Sciences, & Education

______________________________
Andrés G. Gil
Vice President for Research and Economic Development
And Dean of the University Graduate School

Florida International University, 2017
ABSTRACT OF THE THESIS

ALL MY HEROES ARE BROKE

by

Ariel Francisco Henriquez

Florida International University, 2017

Miami, Florida

Professor Campbell McGrath, Major Professor

ALL MY HEROES ARE BROKE is a poetry collection written from the perspective of a first generation American coming to terms with the implicit struggles and disillusionment of the American Dream. The first section takes place in New York, both implicitly and explicitly, and serves to introduce the speaker and reveal aspects of his family’s history. The second section takes place in Florida, and continues to further exemplify the speaker’s growing cynicism towards the circumstances of his life, and the peculiar atmosphere of solitude that it creates.

ALL MY HEROES ARE BROKE primarily uses two forms: short, image driven poems inspired by the works of Robert Bly and Po Chu-I; and longer narrative poems that reveal more personal information about the speaker, in the manner of Li-Young Lee and Frank O’Hara, allowing the speaker to project his own life onto his surroundings and the people of those larger communities.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHAPTER</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I ...........................................................................................................</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A VIEW OF THE STATUE OF LIBERTY FROM THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE ...............</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BEFORE SNOWFALL ..................................................................................</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TULIPS IN WINTER ..................................................................................</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I KNOW YOU LOVE MANHATTAN BUT YOU SHOULD LOOK UP MORE OFTEN ............</td>
<td>7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HAVING A RUM AND COKE ALONE ................................................................</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>READING KEATS AT FREEMAN STATION ...................................................</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LOOKING DOWN FROM ATOP THE EMPIRE STATE BUILDING ............................</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>READING LORCA AT UNION SQUARE ..........................................................</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>EVEN IN NEW YORK, I LONG FOR NEW YORK ............................................</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>READING BASHO ON THE 2 TRAIN ................................................................</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MY DAD’S GUN ..........................................................................................</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UNNOTICED ..............................................................................................</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TRANSIENTS WELCOME ..............................................................................</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>THINKING I SEE MY COUSIN BUSSING TABLES AT AN UPTOWN BAR ..............</td>
<td>26</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>READING JAMES WRIGHT ON THE L TRAIN ...............................................</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nighthawks of the 24-Hour Donut Shops ............................................</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TO PEOPLE TRYING TO RENAME SOUTH BRONX THE PIANO DISTRICT ............</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>O CHRISTMAS TREE ..................................................................................</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>THE YOUNG MEN ALONG THE BAR ARE TOO TIRED EVEN TO DIE .................</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
FOURTH OF JULY .................................................................75
PISSING ON THE LAWN OF A FORECLOSED HOME ......................76
READING TU FU IN THE MORNING ...........................................77
WHEN LIFE GIVES YOU LEMONS .............................................78
THE BOTTOMS OF MY SHOES ARE CLEAN FROM WALKING IN THE RAIN ....79
POEM WRITTEN AT 3 A.M ................................................................80
AMERICAN NIGHT, AMERICAN MORNING ....................................81
WHEN EVERYONE LEAVES FOR OTHER PLANETS, I WILL STAY IN THE ABANDONED CITY, DRINKING A LAST GLASS OF BEER .........................84
A VIEW OF THE STATUE OF LIBERTY
FROM THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE

Locks cling to the bridge’s facade like piercings, inscribed with names in marker or lipstick. Their keys sunken to the bottom of the East River, combinations lost in the brackish waters of memory. A man in a black trench coat sells the locks to passing couples, encourages them to latch their hearts onto the bridge that’s already heavy with rust. Way out on the jilted water: the silhouette of a dream-sized woman standing on a distant corner looks so familiar from this far away—arm raised to hail a cab that will never come.
BEFORE SNOWFALL

French has no word for home.

—Jack Gilbert

I found Baudelaire on a street corner near Washington Square Park for two dollars on a flimsy table littered with orphaned books:

a faded, cracked paperback, lavender as the lingering winter evening that draped the skyline like a dust jacket, and small enough to squeeze into a standard sized envelope, which I did, after scribbling a little note on the inside cover to a girl back home.

She never got the book, which was in French,
and we never spoke again in any language,
though I always wondered what happened to the book, probably lost in the dead letter office, that mass grave of undelivered letters,
moldy packages, and illegible birthday cards.
Still, when winter arrives every year like a janitor to sweep the fallen leaves, and I’m reminded of what is lost, I like to imagine a homeless man fishing my envelope out of that dropbox on Broadway before the mailman gets to it, digging for Christmas cards from grandma stuffed with cash for her favorite grandkid, and instead finding Baudelaire.

He clutches the book with ungloved hands

slumping down against the dropbox in resignation, and flips it open to my little note, which simply says

tell me, is the snow coming down on you too? And I imagine him looking up, his gaze tracing the skyline until it reaches the grey horizon, thinking of all the nowheres to go to lay his head down tonight, saying out loud:

Not yet my friend. Thank goodness, not yet.