Our Country’s Good

By Timberlake Wertenbaker
On June 4, 1789 a very unusual performance of a play took place in what was to become Sydney, Australia. A group of convicts who were Australia's first European settlers, under the direction of a young Royal Marine officer, presented THE RECRUITING OFFICER, a Restoration comedy by George Fahrquar.

OUR COUNTRY’S GOOD takes these and other known historical facts and expands them with creative invention. One of the central issues of the play is whether the convict/refugees are redeemable, and whether efforts like “playmaking” can show them a life which would replace their individual lives of poverty and social inequity.

OUR COUNTRY’S GOOD is a strong affirmation of human nature and perseverance.
