

More Artists' Mothers

By Alex Rocky Ferrer

René Magritte's Mother

Editor's Note: Many moons ago I saw a greeting card titled "Jackson Pollock's Mother," which depicted a little Jackson in the kitchen, looking up at his mother, whose apron was splattered with spaghetti sauce and other culinary colors.

For Vol. 3, No.2, Vol.4, No.1, and Vol.4, No.2 of Inspicio, we asked cartoonist Alex Rocky Ferrer to imagine the mothers of other notable artists. This cartoon is the last in Ferrer's series because Alex wants to pursue his true passion, which is long-form comics.
