Mad Forest was first produced at the Embassy Theatre in London in 1990. Playwright Churchill joined a group of theatre students and directors from the Central School of Drama in London who collaborated with students and directors from the Theatre Institute in Bucharest. Through an exploration of Romanians' experiences during the recent revolution, and through improvisations based upon those experiences, Churchill developed this profoundly-moving play which chronicles the activities of two Romanian families during the critical days of the overthrow and execution of the Ceausescu government.

Directed by Mary Ellen O'Brien
Setting and lighting designed by Zak Herring
Costumes designed by Marilyn Skow.
