Co-sponsored by the Brookings Institution, the Cuba Study Group, the Institute for Public Opinion Research/FIU, and the Cuban Research Institute/FIU, the 2008 Cuba/US Transition Poll is a companion to the FIU Cuba Poll, which is conducted approximately every two years and designed to provide detailed data tracking opinions held by Cuban-American residents of South Florida. The 2008 Cuba/US Transition Poll features a number of questions that enable comparison with results of the FIU Cuba Poll done in 2007 (results at <http://www.fiu.edu/~ipor/cuba8/>) and others that focus on expectations about US Cuba policy following the election of Barack Obama.
