A stirring drama concerning a Canadian family caught in the second generation of incest, deception and abuse. BONJOUR, LA BONJOUR is a play which gifted playwright Michel Tremblay considers one of his finest.

The principle character, Serge, has just returned from overseas and his trip allows everyone to get lost in the fantasy of vacation, ignoring the trouble brewing inside of him. Serge has really returned to consummate a love affair with one of his sisters, while his other two sisters also infatuated with him, want his attention. This family-sexual relationship is heightened when we find that Armand, Serge's father, has, in the past, practiced incest himself. Though the question of hereditary traits is not answered, Serge finds an understanding soul in his father. Father and son find themselves compatriots in this family of desperate women and wicked men.

The play offers a unique dramatic structure which highlights the emotional rhythms of the characters, and takes the audience through a symphony of dramatic experience and revelation.
