Cristobal Diaz-Ayala Presents His 10 Favorite Pieces From the Music Collection

Cristóbal Díaz-Ayala has dedicated his life to collecting hundreds of items related to Cuban and Latin American music, including a large variety of formats such as unique cylinders, rare 78rpms, valuable LPs, and many other exceptional materials.

The Friday of Musicalia will give us an opportunity to learn more about this special music collection. Mr. Diaz-Ayala selected 10 relevant items to illustrate the history of Cuban music through the presentation of favorite objects from the entire collection. His lecture will further enlighten our audience through images, videos, and music that are part of the musical treasure built up over time from valuable various donations.

Cristobal Diaz-Ayala was born in Havana, Cuba. He studied at the University of Havana, where he attended the School of Journalism, obtained a degree in Social Sciences, and also attended the School of Law where he earned his law degree. Diaz-Ayala immigrated to Puerto Rico in 1960, and was admitted by the Puerto Rican Law Association in 1966. He has published hundreds of articles and more than a dozen books related to Cuban and Latin American Music.
