THE FIFTH UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

ROSENBERG

TRANSITION OF POWER: Mark Rosenberg, right, and University President Modesto Maidique, left, embrace after Rosenberg was announced as Maidique's successor.

Former chancellor, professor appointed to top job

JULIO MENACHE
 Staff Writer

Mark Rosenberg, former chancellor of the Florida Board of Governors, has been named FIU's president, succeeding Modesto A. Maidique as the University's fifth president.

The decision was made at a 11:30 a.m. meeting of the Board of Trustees on April 25.

The other two candidates, Ronald Berkman, FIU provost and vice president of Academic Affairs, and Carlos Santiago, chancellor of the University of Wisconsin, dropped out of the race yesterday and this morning respectively.

Berkman accepted a job in Ohio as chancellor of the Cleveland State University.

In a written statement, Santiago said he has decided to "continue the important work that we have started at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee."

Many of Rosenberg's supporters were ecstatic to hear the news.

"I'm happy for FIU," said Hilda Mitrani, director of Multilingual Media & Marketing Inc., who formed a Facebook group looking to gain student support for Rosenberg. "Mark is a wonderful leader. He knows our community and he is a part of our community."

Rosenberg, who had showed interest in the job as early as November, was not in the initial list of 15 candidates who submitted resumes for the presidency in early April.

It wasn't until April 14, three days before the official deadline to submit names, that Rosenberg was included in a list of 34 candidates to be submitted to the Presidential Search Advisory Committee.

Rosenberg, who has served as provost for the University from 1998 to 2005 and Often, I am asked what my favorite sport is, and I always say, "People." I collect people.

During my two and a half years at FIU, I had a chance to meet an assortment of characters: a university president, a porn star, a presidential candidate, comedians, future pro athletes, a New York Times war corre-

But then there's another group of people I got to know. The people I interacted with daily. The people that helped make me who I am today. The people we end up calling friends, professors or colleagues.

It's this collection of people that make up FIU, not a diploma, but the impres-

After four long years I'm finally done – not almost or sort of finished, but done. No more parking lot traffic jams or four-hour lines at the registration office for me; I'm a graduate now.

In four years I've learned about Italian Renaissance art, 19th century French painting, Dante's Divine Comedy, John Donne's sonnets and everything Shakespeare ever wrote.

But that's just book learning, good for graduate school or starting a career. In terms of life skills, it's FIU that's taught me everything I need to know:

Life got in the way, but I'm finally done

EDDITH SEVILLA

I graduated high school in 1999. Ten years later, I am finally getting my bachelor's degree.

I've often asked myself why I allowed 10 years to pass me by before I earned my degree. Most times I can't come up with an answer that justifies the decisions I have made. Other times I remind myself that "life takes you by the wrist and directs you where to go," as the good 'ole Green Day song goes.

Today I am wearing a blue cap and gown, and I'm in disbelief that this day has finally come. For many years when I struggled with chemistry, statistics and algebra – my intended major was nursing – I despaired. When the going got tough, my college diploma seemed like a fantasy. And as I watched most of my high sions they leave on each and every one of us. And to me, they've left quite an impression. Here is one of their stories:

The pain in Sergio Bonilla's lower back reminds him of a life-changing mistake he made on a summer night in 2007. He was driving home from a friend's birthday party. Exhausted from staying up more than 24 hours studying, Bonilla fell asleep at the wheel, drove onto oncoming traffic and crashed.

The result?

He totaled his 2007 Mitsubishi Lancer and herniated a disk in his lower back.

He still feels the pain occasionally going through the normal walks of life, but it's a constant reminder of how blessed he was that night.

"I got lucky. And the whole experience just showed me how lucky I am with the people I have in my life," Bonilla said.

And he knows it could have been worse.

"I can live my life without the car or with the herniated disk, but I wouldn't be able to live if I would have killed someone else."

Up until that moment, the 22-year-old journalism major was living his life without any doubts. But that all changed after the accident.

"It made me tougher and made me realize that I'm not invincible and taught me that I needed to depend on people more," Bonilla said.

Regardless of the route, you've made it this far school friends graduate from college, I felt even worse.

But I'm not the only one. I share this life experience with many who are either sitting here with me today, or who have already sat on this chair. That is not to say that the reason people remain in college for so long is because their parietal lobes don't function properly. No, in fact there is a number of reasons.

Some of us started our families early on. We married and had children before or during college. Others had to pay our way through school, a pricey endeavor that can set anyone back a few semesters or more in this economy. And then there are those who can only dream about college because they're illegal immigrants residing in this country, or whose student visas have expired.

Of course there are many other reasons why this four-year journey in college can become a very extensive journey like mine. After all, each of us has his/her own story.

I remember my first attempt at attending Miami-Dade College many years ago. I didn't have my green card yet, so when I got my out-of-state tuition bill I decided to forgo college for a few semesters. I never had the

The guilt of the accident consumed him for some time and it took almost a year for him to realize the positives that came out of the accident.

"I have to tell people now. I'm not ashamed of it anymore. It opened my eyes to what I have," he said.

And talk about it he has. Now Bonilla openly talks his accident with friends and warns them how one "stupid mistake" can change our lives forever.

More mature and responsible coming out of the wreck, Bonilla stands with us today a candidate for graduation. Beyond the lessons he learned in his journalism classes, he learned not to put himself in positions that can really hurt him.

"It was a good thing that it happened because until I got bitten really, really hard, I wasn't going to stop pushing."

College gives us the chance to grow, change and make mistakes – even if they're as big as a car accident. The margin for error is shrinking for us, but let me let you in on a little secret.

We're still going to make mistakes and we're still going to keep on learning.

And that's one impression Bonilla has left on me and other people he's met.

What impressions have you left on people while at FIU? It's still not too late. Just hurry up because I think they're about to call your name.

luxury of attending college while living off my parents. In fact, a few days after graduating high school, I started working a full-time job to help my mother with our bills.

Through it all, a college degree was never an option; it was my goal. Thus, I never lost my dream of one day walking across stage in recognition of my accomplishments.

That's a dream I share with many people: those who you see wearing a cap and gown, those who sit on the sides and those who as you read this, are planning out their next four, eight or 10 years in college.

And like those dreamers, I've had an array of family members, friends and FIU educators, who have pushed, led and cheered me on. To say that I have accomplished this on my own would be to lie.

As I wait here to walk on stage, I'm wondering how many of you share my story. I look around and see your story reflected in the smile of a single mother who went back to school to finally get her degree, or in that of a friend who will not be going to school this summer because he can't afford tuition. To all of you, know this: When I walk on stage and my name is called out, not only will it represent my accomplishment, but your story as well.

acting president from February to July 1999, said this is the honor of a lifetime.

"I'm thrilled that the University and the community have faith in my ability to lead FIU," said Rosenberg in a recent video interview with the University. "We are going to build on the strong legacy that 'Mitch' Maidique has graced us with ... that this university move to its next level of excellence."

Rosenberg will succeed Maidique, who has served as FIU's president for 23 years.

Last Thursday, Maidique along with 10 presidents of Florida's public university system, visited Tallahassee to protest further cuts by the state legislature. The Florida Senate has proposed $250 million cut in state government funding for public universities, while the Senate plan doubles the amount of cuts to $500 million, as well as a $100 million reduction in university employee salaries.

According to an e-mail by Maidique to the University community, FIU could face a $44 million cut in state aid.

"A 38 percent cut to the University's state support would dramatically alter FIU as you know it," Maidique said.

During his campus visit last Thursday, Rosenberg did not rule out the possibility of raising tuition.

"We're in the budget crisis of our lives," he said to audience members. "It's a challenge that we're facing together. Sadly, the only way to maintain a quality education at this time may be tuition increases. If I am president, however, my first priorities will be finance and budget."

'Never doubt the power of your own words': Be kind yet firm in a few more minutes to study before a big test. Be careful though: Being early lets you pick where to sit, being late means you get to pick who you sit next to. If you're always early you'll never be stuck in a bad seat, but you'll also never get the chance to strike a conversation with the sexy someone that catches your eye.

You don't always have to be the first to arrive, but choose your tardies wisely: Not everyone's worth your time.

DON'T WASTE TIME

Having a seven-floor library is both a blessing and a curse: infinite resources, infinite ground to cover. Remember that the one minute you spend at the reference desk asking where you can find books you need is one hour you save yourself for later.

Apply this asking-for-directions bit to traveling and to romantic relationships. You'll find you'll have time to enjoy scenic routes on trips and more time to enjoy the one you love rather than wasting it pulling out hair and wondering where you took a wrong turn.

TALK THINGS OUT

Deadlines are flexible despite what three-paragraph warning professors may engrave in their syllabi. Don't be afraid to ask for extensions in life. Almost anything you can think of can be resolved with a good argument in your defense: tardies, absences, late papers. Finals and grades, however, require magic adjectives and notarized documents you may or may not always have immediate access to. Ask sparingly, but never doubt the power of your own words.

Remember to not wait too long before you ask, though – you might end up being too late sometimes.

BE KIND TO OTHERS

Everyone's got a lot on their shoulders – be that in their backpacks or on their mind. Show some compassion and hold the door open for the person walking behind you. Let go when they reach it so they can go through and, hopefully, pay the favor forward. Stand there too long and you run the risk of being the village bellhop.

Set the example and be firm, don't let the world take advantage of your kindness.

DUST YOUR SHOULDERS OFF

Finals week proved life can be cruel, what with seeing fellow students write last minute 10-page papers, hold all-night study sessions and take up to three finals in a row. Don't let it keep you down: smile. They're the strongest weapons in your arsenal with your frowns being the most destructive.

Consider this the next time life throws one of its soul-sucking curve balls at you. You'll find rare is the instance that calls for disapproval unless broken hearts are involved.

Even then all you might need is a lawyer to help you make a clean cut.

THE STRENGTH TO HEAL
and learn lessons in courage.

The pride you'll feel in being a doctor increases dramatically when you care for our Soldiers and their Families. Courage is contagious. Our Health Professions Scholarship Program (HPSP) helps you reach your goal by providing full tuition, money towards books and lab fees, a $20,000 sign-on bonus, plus a monthly stipend of more than $1,900.

To learn more about the U.S. Army Health Care Team, call CPT David Moore at 877-266-0081, email david.moore5@usarec.army.mil, or visit healthcare.goarmy.com/info/mchpspl.
