Second International Seminar on Memory, Conflict and Reconciliation

Friday, December 1, 2017 | 2 PM | FIU MMC | CBC Special Events Center

Join the Steven J. Green School of International and Public Affairs and the Václav Havel Program for Human Rights and Diplomacy for its second international seminar on the complex questions surrounding the role of memory in our public discourse about conflict and reconciliation.

A distinguished group of scholars from fields such as political science, religion and history as well as practitioners - people confronted with the problem of memory, conflict and reconciliation in the context of their various professional activities - will articulate diverse perspectives on the nature of memory, engage in dialogue and help us learn more about this topic.

Panel 1: The Philosophical Perspective

Martin Palouš, Director, Václav Havel Program for Human Rights and Diplomacy, FIU

Monsignor Tomáš Halík, Professor of Sociology at the Faculty of Arts, Charles University, Czech Republic

David Walsh, Professor of Philosophy at Catholic University of America, Washington D.C.

Martin Kroupa, Title, Post Bellum, Czech Republic

Orlando Gutierrez-Boronat, Writer and Educator; Co-founder and Spokesperson, Cuban Democratic Directorate

Panel 2: Cotemporary History and Storytelling
