THERE WILL BE ONE TEN-MINUTE INTERMISSION
“Nonviolence is the answer to the crucial political and moral questions for our time; the need for mankind to overcome oppression and violence without resorting to oppression and violence. Mankind must evolve for all human conflict a method which rejects revenge, aggression and retaliation. The foundation of such a method is love.” (Martin Luther King Jr., December 11, 1964)

On September 4th, 2003 the Miami Herald carried the following banner headline “LOVE IS A BATTLEFIELD:Soldier and Iraqi Woman Defy Custom Baghdad- When her fiancé left Iraq for Germany, Nayzak al Jassm gave him a Koran for good luck. Raphael Velez asked her to remember him with a tiny cross that dangles on a gold chain around her neck. Faith, they said, was the only force strong enough to protect them from disapproving whispers of people who do not believe in love between a Muslim Iraqi woman and a Roman Catholic US Army sergeant. Their relationship is forbidden.......”

At that moment the concept for “Romeo and Juliet: the east/west project” was decided.

Contrary to conventional sentiment, here at home, a spirit exists that can heal. It lies between east and west. It is the native call within the womb of America, the land and sky before it became designated as a “New World”. This spirit exists. It is around each and every man and woman. It is filled with a potential to heal, if only man were not so distracted by social, political, and personal agendas. Nature destroys and nature heals. Mankind destroys, but unlike nature mankind knows not how to heal its own destruction for nature contains the wisdom of a time before creation. As a nation we would be healed if only we could “see” the spirit-if only we could “breathe in” its powerful restorative. Then might Prejudice be banished, Intolerance exiled and our doors and windows thrown wide open to the light of Reason and, once again, might our dearest friends, Compassion, Trust and Truth sit at our table around which Martin Luther King’s Dream might then be realized.

Imagine........ just imagine...........! PC

Dedication: to PD, spirit that lies between east and west
